A Much Anticipated Tradition!

Brown Women's Basketball Visits The Wolf School

Continuing what's become a much anticipated tradition, players from the Brown University Women's Basketball team joined The Wolf School basketball team to oversee their after school practice.

Our students had a blast learning from the best!

Winter Olympics At Home!

4 Indoor Winter Movement Ideas

Occupational Therapist and Wolf School co-founder, Lise Gerard Faulise, MS, OTR/L, BCP, shares 4 ideas to help keep your child moving indoors during the winter months!

Soon it will happen - the familiar pattern of winter blues and fatigue will settle into your child because going outside for movement is no longer an option. This seasonal funk is what happens when Complex Learners struggle to get the sensory input that they need to stay organized, energized and relaxed enough to fall asleep at night.

As a parent of a Complex Learner, you understand your child requires the sensory input that movement provides but with frigid temperatures you are stuck indoors. So, what can you do to help your child get moving?
