Celebrating 20 Years of Wolf!

Founders' Day 2019

From honoring community members, to incredible presentations by our students, and even surprising our own Anna Johnson, this year's Founders' Day was special for many reasons.

A Mind is a Difficult Thing to Remind!

Helping your child build executive function skills

Does your child struggle to remember the instructions you just told him? Does she have a meltdown every time things don't go as planned? From planning to self-regulating, executive function skills are used every day in almost every aspect of our lives.

But something that comes so naturally for most can actually be a challenge for Complex Learners. Most children with learning or attention issues also struggle with executive function skills. These issues can impact their school life, their friendships, and their time at home.

THE WORLD OF COMPLEX LEARNERS

HELPING YOUR CHILD BUILD EXECUTIVE FUNCTION SKILLS

A Visual Celebration of Community!

Room 3 works together to create a mural!

Community plays an important role at The Wolf School. At a recent All-School Assembly, community was the theme of a presentation by Room 3 students.

Each student created a scene of their neighborhood that when put together created a beautiful collaborative mural. But the project was so much more than that. It left a lasting impact on the students by helping them develop their own sense of community.
